President Signs Social Security Law

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 (AP)—President Eisenhower today signed into law a precedent-setting Social Security bill permitting women to retire at 62 and disabled workers to draw benefits at 50.

In signing the bill, the President said in a statement:

"I am hopeful that this new law, on the whole, will advance the economic security of the American people."

The President said the law "contains certain major provisions which were recommended by the administration."

He added that it also includes provisions "about which the administration had serious reservations in their initial form," but those provisions "were modified and improved before their final enactment and now meet, in part, some of the administration's objections."

Congress Fails To Take Action On Walter Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 (AP)—Congress took no action before adjournment on a bill by Rep. Walter (D-Pa.) to give the states the equivalent of concurrent authority with the federal government to enforce sedition and subversive activity laws.

Walter's bill was referred to the House Judiciary Committee which took no action.

East Stroudsburg School Reveals Building Plans

EAST Stroudsburg Area Joint Schools moved yesterday to within a half-year of beginning its $2,200,000 junior-senior high school building project.

H. F. Everett and Associates, Allentown, architect and engineers for the project, released the black-and-white detailed painting which is printed with this article.

Meanwhile, Carl T. Secor, superintendent of the joint schools, said last night that the joint committee hopes to see architects plans finished so bids may be advertised for in about six months.

The joint board has tentatively set September, 1958 as its goal for occupancy of the new school building. It will be located on the rear section of the Maplehurst property adjoining the present senior high school and the elementary section of the system.

Among the major features of the new building program will be: a 1,000 seat auditorium, a large cafeteria, a two-story classroom building which is constructed on a sloping hillside which permits another group of rooms to be built on the ground level, a new gymnasium which will seat 1,500 and may be divided into two separate physical education rooms through use of an electronically-controlled dividing wall.

Using the photo accompanying this article, the reader may locate the following items of special interest:

At the extreme top right is the existing shop building. Immediately below it at upper right is the 1,000-seat auditorium. This structure will be built complete with bus-loading canopy to the front. It will also contain rooms for art instruction, hand, chorus and practice rooms. Proximity of the industrial arts and fine arts sections to each other will permit close alliance of the two art media in production of plays, musicals and other student presentations requiring staging.

The large windows in the right-hand court are in the auditorium lobby. This lobby will also contain display areas and a drum-shaped check room and ticket booth.

The one-story section facing the right-hand court is the office section. It will include the offices of the senior and junior high school principals, superintendents, general office, business manager, vault, guidance suite and consultation room, nurse's office, examination room and toilet and storage facilities.

The front one-story wing will house a four-room commercial suite and student activity room facing the street. The right end of this unit will contain the library overlooking the tree-lined auditorium entrance drive. Conference rooms and the library work room (Please Turn To Page 3)

Toll Bridge Commission Files Suit For $95,366

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1 (AP)—Suit was filed in U. S. District Court today by the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission seeking to recover $95,366 from two former members of the commission.

Named in the complaint filed by Raymond J. Bradley Jr., attorney for the commission, were Alexander R. Miller, of Easton, former executive director, and R. Chapman Carver, of Ivyland, Pa., a commission member.

Last February, Pennsylvania's Gov. Leader charged an investigation showed the two men, along with Leslie Brown, of Trenton, N. J., chairman of the two-state toll of $84,209 in salaries and expenses over a three-year period although not entitled to such salaries.

The complaint stated that an agreement between the states of New Jersey and Pennsylvania "properly interpreted and construed, bars the payment of any salaries to the members of the commission except its engineer, and authorizes the commission to bring action to recover salaries paid in violation of the agreement."

The suit seeks to recover $71,316 the commission claims Miller received between February, 1946, and June, 1955, and $24,050 Carver received between February, 1948, and June, 1955.

It alleges that both men had "received the sums as salary illegally and unauthorized."

No mention was made of Brown in the suit. The $84,209 figure mentioned at the time Gov. Leader made his charges, apparently has grown with subsequent investigations.

Suits against Brown and other New Jersey members of the commission have been filed in U. S. District Court in Trenton.

Stevenson Picks Up Two Delegates

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1 (AP)—Adlai Stevenson picked up the votes today of two Pennsylvania Democratic convention delegates who had favored the nomination of Estes Kefauver, but two others who preferred the Tennessee senator remained "undecided" about a new choice.

All told, Kefauver had eight supporters—each with a half vote—among the big 148-member Keystone State delegation, but four of them could not be reached.

Aluminum Strike Hits 19 Plants

NEW YORK, Aug. 1 (AP)—The nation's aluminum industry was hit today by a strike of 28,000 workers in 21 plants. However, a strike deadline was extended for 20,500 workers in 19 other plants where a separate union has jurisdiction.

The walkout was called by the United Steelworkers of America.

Bulletin

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 1 (AP)—Tentative agreement was reached tonight on a new contract to avert a strike by 15,000 workers employed in nine plants of the Aluminum Co. of America. The agreement was reached just a few minutes before a midnight strike deadline set by the Aluminum Workers International Union.

which was simultaneously engaged in drawing up new contracts to end the month-long steel strike.

The new strike, result of a wage dispute, halted operations at 12 plants of the Aluminum Co. of America (Alcoa) and nine of the Reynolds Metals Co.

Meanwhile, the Aluminum Workers International Union extended its strike deadline 24 hours—until midnight tonight—for nine Alcoa plants.

In negotiations with Reynolds, the company and the AWIU have an agreement extending present contract terms on a day-to-day basis as negotiations continue, with a provision that the plan can be terminated on three days' notice. Ten plants are affected.

The plants closed by the USW produce about 50 per cent of the nation's aluminum.

A USW spokesman said the union was ready to resume negotiations but that no talks had been scheduled with either Alcoa, the nation's largest aluminum producer, or with Reynolds, second in production.

The union issued a statement attacking the "attitude of Alcoa throughout the negotiations" and particularly today.

Ministers To Call Major Suez Meeting

LONDON, Aug. 1 (AP)—The foreign ministers of Britain, France and the United States agreed tonight to call an international meeting—including Egypt and the Soviet Union—to establish international control of the Suez Canal.

The agreement was disclosed by an American informant who said "the possibility of forceful action" has receded.

He said that during U. S. Secretary of State Dulles' meetings today with Prime Minister Eden and the British and French foreign ministers the possible use of force to insure international control of the canal appeared to have been accepted as "a last resort."

Presumably only a hostile act by Egypt against British or French ships would bring military action by those countries.

Breaks Up
When the foreign ministers' meeting broke up near midnight, Pinesau told reporters agreement had been reached on means of seeking a "political solution" to the Suez Canal question.

"If that is not accepted, we will have to seek other means," he said.

Dulles left the meeting at the French Embassy an hour before it ended. Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy represented the United States at the session's closing.

Pinesau said a final statement on the results of the three-power meeting was expected tomorrow.

In Alexandria, President Gamal Abdel Nasser, whose decree nationalizing the canal angered and alarmed both Britain and France, declared Egypt would "repel the pirates" threatening his country "if they violate Egyptian rights in the canal dispute or on Egyptian soil."

Nasser told a Boy Scout meeting that Egypt would defend the canal to assure freedom of navigation. He spoke shortly after reports were received from London saying Britain was determined to use force to prevent Egyptian interference with canal shipping. This report was based on a statement by an authoritative British source, who said Britain would act alone if necessary in case Egypt rejects an internationally negotiated control system.

Conference
The projected international conference is expected to be held within one month, possibly by mid-August. The American source said it has not yet been settled who will convene the meeting.

The Big Three decision to invite both Russia and Egypt appeared an acceptance of the U. S. point of view.

They were reported also considering ways to keep in escrow money paid in tolls until an agreement is reached.

Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov and French Ambassador Maurice Dejean conversed at length tonight at a Swiss legation reception in Moscow. Dejean declined to reveal what they discussed. But it was considered certain the subjects included both the Suez dispute and the nationalist rebellion against France in Algeria.

Senator Supports Route 6

HARRISBURG, Aug. 1 (AP)—A state senator today put his support behind moves to have U. S. Route 6 through northern Pennsylvania included in the federal interstate highway system.

Sen. Berger (R-Potter) said residents of Northern Tier counties through which Route 6 passes feel it would be the "most advantageous" route to include in the federal network through the state.

General Would Have Demoted Drill Leader

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C., Aug. 1 (AP)—The nation's Marine Corps commandant said today he thought S. Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon should have been demoted for drinking and possibly court-martialed for leading a march April 8 on which six recruits drowned.

Gen. Randolph McC. Pate said that if it had been up to him he probably would have transferred McKeon from this recruit depot for "stupidity" and forbidden him to drill recruits again.

But Pate testified at McKeon's court-martial that he did not consider the sergeant guilty of oppressing recruits — one of the charges against him.

March
McKeon is charged with manslaughter, oppression and drinking on duty in connection with a night march of Platoon 71 into Ribbon Creek.

Pate was called to the stand as a defense witness. He termed discipline the core of Marine training. But he said he never would sanction "sheer brutalities."

Just before he walked into court, Pate met McKeon, 31, for the first time and said to the drill instructor:

"Good luck to you, boy."

Emile Zola Berman, defense attorney, posed a long hypothetical question to Pate. In it, Berman asked him to assume that everything happened April 8 as the defense sees it. Then Berman said:

"Assuming these facts, had the matter come to your attention in your official capacity, what action, in your opinion, would you have taken?"

Pate replied: "It is evident this drill instructor did drink some vodka and I assume that's against regulations. I think maybe I'd take a stripe away from him for that."

"For the remaining part—it's very fuzzy to me and I haven't heard the evidence — I suspect I would probably have transferred him away for stupidity, more positively bad judgment, and made a note in his record book that under no conditions could he ever drill recruits again. That's not a final judgment, but just my opinion."

In his turn, Maj. Charles B. Sevier, the prosecutor, put his own hypothetical question to Pate, a tall man with light, thinning hair and dark glasses. Sevier asked Pate to assume a set of facts in connection with himself that corresponded with the prosecution's case. Then he asked:

Question
"What would you do to me?"
The general replied: "I would assume I would—this is off the cuff—I think I would probably consider you the most stupid individual I had ever met, although as I said before, poor judgment would be a better term."

"It might be necessary to award you a court-martial as to the degree of your guilt."

Pate was asked by the trial judge, Irving N. Klein, if he had not gone along with a court of inquiry determination to court-martial McKeon.

"I did, yes, sir," Pate replied. The general was on the stand just 54 minutes.

Pate strode into the school building that serves as a courthouse and into the defense chambers as military police clicked heels smartly at his passage. He strode up to McKeon and told him:

"Sergeant, it's nice to see you. I'm glad to help you in any way I can to see that the interests of justice are met. Where's your wife? I'd like to meet her."

McKeon stood as though transfixed. He muttered, "Glad to see you, sir," and managed a "Thank you, sir," here and there. His wife was not present.

Earlier, before ending his own witness stand appearance, McKeon cried out against an implication he led the death march past sentries in a stealthy outlaw manner.

Sevier asked McKeon if he didn't deliberately choose a route of march for Platoon 71 to avoid sentries.

"Frankly, I wasn't trying to hide anything, and that's the God's honest truth," McKeon replied.

Nixon Only Running Mate Discussed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 (AP)—President Eisenhower today declared the Republican convention "open" to anybody who wants to run for vice president. But the only candidate he mentioned by name as acceptable to him was the man who holds the job now, Richard M. Nixon.

Eisenhower gave his carefully qualified views at the first news conference he has held since before his June 9 operation — and his first, of course, since aide Harold E. Stassen launched a drive to get Nixon off the 1956 ticket and put Massachusetts Gov. Christian A. Herter in his place.

The President looked a bit less vigorous than he did before the operation. His voice was somewhat husky and his speech just a little hesitant at times. He said he's feeling good — better every day, in fact, though not as well as he felt a year ago. And he said firmly he sees no reason why he shouldn't be able to serve a second term.

A record-equalling crowd of 311 correspondents turned up in the sweltering conference room to see how Eisenhower looked and to find out, if they could, how he felt about Stassen's effort to change the apparent lineup of the GOP ticket.

Main Lines
Two main lines of the President's feeling on this subject—which could produce a floor fight at the San Francisco convention—emerged:

1. He refused to say specifically that he wants Nixon—or any other particular person—as his running mate. He said San Francisco won't be a "cut and dried affair"—and that Nixon completely agrees. Far from rebuking Stassen, he declared the onetime Minnesota governor has done "a very splendid job" as his disarmament aide and will be welcome back after his four-week leave.

2. He took issue, by plain implication with Stassen's charges that Nixon would weaken the ticket with American voters and would detract from American prestige abroad. Moreover, he declared nobody has talked to him about a "dump-Nixon" movement. "No one," Eisenhower added with a touch of sternness, "would have that effrontery."

The President's meaning was not quite clear on this point. Stassen has asked for, and been granted, a leave to promote Herter as a candidate—though Herter, only 24 hours after Stassen's original announcement of his plans pulled the rug part way from under the movement by agreeing to put Nixon's name before the convention himself.

Stassen said he thought the President "made exactly the right statement" on the question at today's news conference. In a statement issued shortly after the conference Stassen repeated his belief an Eisenhower-Herter ticket would be stronger than an Eisenhower-Nixon slate.

Firmly and repeatedly Eisenhower declined to discuss vice presidential possibilities other than Nixon. He declined to say, for instance, whether Herter would be acceptable. Once you start commenting on individuals, said the President, you inevitably come to the point where you might have to turn thumbs down on somebody and he made it plain he doesn't contemplate doing any such thing in public.

The President, wearing a light gray double-breasted suit, spoke mainly in a quietly good-humored fashion. He did brush aside some questions rather tersely. And at times he showed flashes of the fervent manner long familiar to newsmen — as when he spoke out against injecting racial bigotry into political campaigns.

Borough Council Votes To Remove Direction Sign For Trucks

Decision Brings Protest From Harris

STROUDSBURG Borough Council last night voted to take down a sign on the Seventh St. Bridge which directs heavy truck traffic on to Ann St.

The decision brought immediate protest from Chief Burgess Hal H. Harris, who then ordered Police Chief James McConnell to take two patrolmen off night duty and reassign them to handle traffic at Seventh and Ann Sts.

McConnell, in the Council Chambers at the time, was ordered by the mayor to have these men on duty six days a week.

Diversion of truck traffic to Ann St. resulted in protests from trucking firm owners and residents of the street. However, the problem was supposedly ironed out when attorneys for both sides came to an agreement whereby trucks would use the street at certain times.

Other Action

In other action, Councilman Daniel G. Warner asked council to consider parallel parking on Main St. east of Fifth and west of Seventh streets.

Earlier, Willard Quick, local restaurant owner and a county commissioner, requested council to see if parallel parking spaces couldn't be set up in front of his business place.

However Mayor Harris made it clear last night that the present parking plan in this location was set up on the advice of state highway traffic experts. He suggested that the existing system be kept.

Containing that more than 7-million cars use the intersection of Seventh and Main Sts. each year, Harris said he didn't want any "log jam."

The mayor and Council President Edward Lawson agreed that such parking problems would probably resolve themselves when the bypass is completed.

Council also received a request from the newly-organized borough parking authority, headed by Dr. Samuel Sullivan, for $3,400 to get an engineering study of the municipality's parking needs.

Turned Down

However, the council turned down the request with the advice that the authority get at least one more proposal for such a study. Lawson indicated that it would be possible to arrange for another special meeting later this month to reconsider the matter of an engineering study.

Dr. Sullivan said the proposal he presented last night was made by the firm of Gannett, Fleming, Cordry and Carpenter of Harrisburg. The study would include a study of present parking practices, an analysis of possible parking sites, and a financial feasibility study.

Sullivan noted that the authority got only the one proposal because time was important. He said the authority felt that a study should be made during the August peak.

He also observed that the proposal was made by a reputable engineering firm. A study by such a company would probably make it easier to sell the bonds, he added.

Council also agreed to study drainage conditions on W. Main St., at the request of Councilman Warner.

Borough Engineer Edward C. Hess said a "bad condition" has existed along W. Main St., since it was built in 1925. The road is built higher than the sidewalks, allowing water to drain into homes.

Council was informed that the state would resurface the street, but that drainage is a problem of the borough.

Council approved a request from the Army Engineers for a permit for test borings and other exploratory work in the area of the sewage treatment works. The work is being done in connection with proposed flood control projects of the engineers.

Council moved to advertise for bids to replace a defective electrical cable in the area of the sewage treatment works. Hess said he has already received one estimate for $500.

In other action, Council agreed to borrow $10,000 for necessary operating expenses, because of a delay in the tax duplicates.

Leader Names Council Of Education

HARRISBURG, Aug. 1 (AP) — A Pulitzer prize winning author was among nine persons appointed by Gov. Leader today to the state Council of Education.

In listing the appointment of writer Pearl Buck and the others, Leader said they would add impetus to a planned reorganization of the state's county school offices and teacher certification methods.

Mrs. Pearl Buck Walsh, in private life, resides in Dublin, Bucks County.

"They (appointees) are acquainted with all facets of the most important phase of state government," Leader said, adding:

New Outlook

"They will bring to Pennsylvania government a new outlook and progressive leadership in the field of education."

The last Legislature authorized a $50,000 study of school administration reorganization by the council after it had refused to enact laws eliminating the office of county school superintendent.

Other council members named all for 6 years: Andrew J. Nowak, Erie, president of the state School Directors Assn.; George E. Hamilton, Meadville, president of a firm that manufactures visual aids; Dr. O. H. English, district superintendent of Abington Twp. schools, Montgomery County;

Discussion To Take Place On Non-Conformity Sunday

INFORMAL DISCUSSION of non-conformity and its role in society will be held Sunday night in a special program at Grace Lutheran Church.

Young people of the community are invited to take part. The program has been arranged by young adults in cooperation with the American Friends Service Committee work group now helping to rehabilitate East Stroudsburg playground.

Time of the program is 8 p.m. It will be held in the church auditorium. Planning for the discussion grew out of a desire on the part of young boys and girls in the community and the work group to carry out some joint activity.

Speaker

The main speaker will be Reginald Reynolds. He will give an introductory presentation. The young people will then break up into small groups for purposes of discussion. A general summary of discussion will round out the program.

Some areas which may be brought into discussion include: What has been the role of the non-conformist in the growth of the U.S.? The law of the land vs. a higher law. When is non-conformity justified? Non-conformity as a current popular tendency.

Reynolds, the main speaker, is an English Friend who is now traveling in the U.S. under the auspices of the American Friends Service Committee. He worked with Gandhi on Gandhi's "civil disobedience" campaign in 1930. "Capetown to Cairo", an account of Reynolds' experiences in Africa, was published recently. All young people in the area are invited to attend the discussion program.

adjoin the library. A three-room home economics suite will also be housed here.

Foreground

At left foreground center, the section with the irregular, undulating roof houses a cafeteria with a glass wall facing the left-hand court. The cafeteria may be entered from either side of the school, facilitating rapid service and eliminating cross-traffic. It will also serve elementary children housed in the two existing buildings. These buildings will remain in use for several years, according to the architects.

Extending along the left-hand side of the new building is a bus loading and service canopy. The section also houses supply rooms, kitchen and the gymnasium foyer.

At the extreme left, to the rear, on the hillside is the boiler room and custodial rooms. Heating for the two old buildings will also be handled from the new boiler plant.

The two-story structure housing the class rooms is placed on the hillside permitting another group of class rooms on the ground level at the rear of the building. This unit will house all of the academic rooms, including a complete science suite.

This unit will house junior high on the main and ground floors and senior high on the second floor. An elevator will be installed for handling supplies, maintenance, equipment and for use of handicapped children.

The high, sloping roof section to the rear will be the gymnasium. An electric folding wall will divide it into two physical education floors when it is needed for that purpose. For sports events, the wall will be retracted and folding bleachers will be pulled out from opposite walls.

Lockers and showers for boys and girls are on the floor below and look out onto a terrace which overlooks the athletic field. A lagoon, which will be developed from the large spring run at the rear of the building, will add beauty to the property and serve as a utilitarian receiver for roof drainage.

Due to the drop off the bank, there will be space under the locker rooms on the same level as the athletic field for an indoor swimming pool. The pool will be an alternate bid so that it can be deleted from the contract, if necessary, however.

The building can be separated into three distinct units for use simultaneously for evening activity and adult education without having the classroom section accessible. Each unit is fitted with toilet facilities.

A system of traffic flow has been evolved so that the offices and library areas are centralized. Courts will provide private outdoor classrooms, play and lunch areas.

The building has been designed so that it will not disturb existing trees and driveways at both auditorium and gymnasium ends. The entire structure is designed on a 16-foot grid to accommodate standard materials.

Mental Health Benefits Explained To MORAClub

THE WAYS in which the citizens of Monroe County could benefit from an active Mental Health Association were set forth at yesterday's meeting of the MORAClub at the YMCA by Roger Dunning, supervisor of elementary education in the Strouds Union School district.

Dunning, who has attended district and state meetings on mental health discussed the facilities and services now available to local people. The picture is at once very gloomy and very hopeful. It is gloomy because the number of such facilities are very limited, but hopeful because both the state and national government have realized the necessity of expanding these services, and the economic and human savings which could be possible, he said.

State funds are now available to expand such services, he said. Also a guest speaker at the meeting was Rev. C. Clyde Levergood of the Cherry Valley Methodist Church.

During the business session, Charles Keiper suggested that the use of the full name of the club, Men of Retired Age Club, might keep the public informed of its purpose and bring in other retired men who may wish to offer their services and enjoy the activities of the club.

It was also voted to elect two additional vice presidents.

Yetter Airls Reimbursement On Gasoline

PROCEDURES by which local farmers may apply for reimbursement of gasoline taxes on gas used for farm equipment was explained last night by Rep. Van D. Yetter.

Yetter said that local farmers may obtain forms needed to make application either by writing to him at East Stroudsburg RD 2 or by writing to The Board of Finance and Revenue, 52 Kline Village, Harrisburg.

Initial Form

The initial form merely registers the farmer with the Bureau. He then receives by return mail a code number which is used in all further dealings with his tax reimbursement applications.

Applications are made twice yearly. Reimbursement covers only that liquid fuel tax paid on gasoline used to power machinery used directly on farms.

Gruesome Report From Georgia Recalls National Prison Troubles

Normal human beings across the Nation shuddered at the gruesome report that 36 hardened convicts at Georgia's Rock Quarry Prison smashed their own legs with 10 to 12 pound sledge hammers this week.

Dr. Reuben Smith, the prison physician, said the bone breaking had been going on for several months—presumably to avoid work. The latest incident occurred because the prisoners said they couldn't stand "the unbearable workload in the hot sun."

However, State Corrections Director Jack Forrester said flatly the trouble was with the men—not the prison. He, therefore, made it clear no further investigations would be conducted and that the injured inmates would be "severely disciplined" upon their release from the prison hospital at Reidsville.

It seems incredible that Georgia's top corrections officer should categorically declare that "the trouble was with the men—not the prison." It is furthermore incredible that he should blindly affirm that no further probe will be conducted.

For it seems that recalcitrant prisoners—seeking to merely get out of work—could find some easier way than to break their own legs, smashing them until the bones stuck through the skin.

What happened in Georgia this week is only one of a series of uprisings in penal institutions across the country. Others occurred only recently in Indiana and Maine.

In 1952, a shocking series of prison riots flared up across the country. On April 16th of that year, convicts at New Jersey State Prison at Trenton started what was to become a chain reaction. Four days later, a more terrifying riot ignited at Michigan State Prison at Jackson, where a brilliant psychopathic inmate, Earl Ward, became virtual warlord of infamous Fifteen Block.

Later, another riot broke out at Norfolk State Prison in Massachusetts. This time, Gov. Christian A. Herter immediately appointed a citizens committee, headed by a college president, to study conditions in the Bay State's prisons. Ultimately, the committee made far-reaching recommendations. Some of these suggestions were immediately adopted. Others have been lost in the maze of red-tape.

The same holds true for Trenton. While the "hot glare of publicity" was on corrections officials in the neighboring state talk was of building a new prison to replace the 120 year old basille at Trenton. However, New Jersey's Governor Robert B. Meyner indicated soon after his election he would take the $4,800,000 appropriated to start a new prison at Arnetown and use it to fix up the old prison at Trenton. At the time, he also indicated that land purchased for the new prison would be sold.

So the merry-go-round of human misery continues. Slight improvements are made in the penal, probation and parole systems of the states. Then political control, public apathy and lack of funds and well-trained personnel cause new unrest. Riots are touched off at the slightest provocation, causing millions of dollars of public property to be destroyed, and often resulting in bloodshed and loss of life.

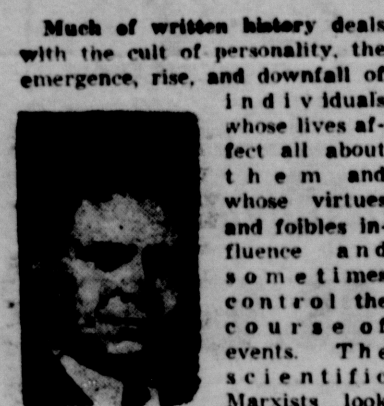

So much of this trouble could undoubtedly be avoided—and at a savings to the taxpayer, if only the advice of the Nation's top criminologists were heeded.

Greater classification of prisoners, better facilities, therapeutic aids, higher wages for personnel and more reliance on the probation system would undoubtedly help ease the situation. Moreover, the public must come to the firm conclusion—no matter how painful—that the underlying motive behind imprisonment MUST be to rehabilitate the prisoner—not to punish him.

The more stringent punishments have never been known to act as a deterrent to crime.—By Paul R. Carlson

George Sokolsky Says...

History Explains Everything, Including Nixon's Rise To Vice President's Office

Much of written history deals with the cult of personality, of emergence, rise, and downfall of individuals whose lives affect all about them and whose virtues and foibles influence and sometimes control the course of events. The scientific Marxists look to economic and social influences as being stronger and more effective than personalities. They explain the appearance of an Alexander, a Caesar, a Charlemagne, a Wang An-shih, an Akbar, a Napoleon, a Hitler or a Stalin, a Genghis Kahn or a Franco, a Simon Bolivar or a George Washington, and the events related to them, upon the economic and social conditions which made their careers possible. Nevertheless, Stalin could, in the most Marxist of countries, turn himself into a demigod and while he lived the resistance to him was scant.

The reason, for instance, why Richard Nixon and not Harold Stassen is at present Vice President of the United States, they would attribute to an economic interpretation of the 1952 Republican Convention whereas actually it was due to the fact that when a newspaperman suggested that Representative Karl Mundt go to Whittaker Chambers' farm near Baltimore, Mundt was a bit weary and suggested that Representative Nixon might be willing to go. Nixon did go and Alger Hiss went to prison. Politically Nixon has established a value to the Republican Party which was utilitarian in the 1952 Campaign and may be again. All sorts of things happen at political conventions, and when it is suggested that Nixon betrayed the then Governor of California, Earl Warren, it must also be noted that Warren was not a veritable candidate for the Presidency and that both camp knew that he desired a seat on the Supreme Court and that both the Eisenhower and Taft groups hoped to bargain for California's votes on that basis and did. Perhaps Nixon did manage to get the Vice Presidency because of that, but had Robert A. Taft been nominated, the Vice Presidency most likely would have gone to Senator William Knowland who would today, in the circumstance, have been President of the United States. There were many personal contracts in both camps and at one period, I observed closely the bargaining for votes. Both sides were doing it, but the Eisenhower agents were more skillful than those who represented Taft.

The weakness of the cult of personality in American politics is that the Constitution fixes the term of office rigidly to four years, after which an election must be held. No man has ever had time enough between elections to make himself the master of the country. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Dwight D. Eisenhower have been about as popular as anyone can become in this kind of a country, but neither fully mastered their own parties, much less the country. Roosevelt overcame this by running and being elected four times, the fourth time while he was a very sick man and undoubtedly dying. To safeguard the country further against such personalities, the 22nd Amendment to the Constitution was passed limiting the President to two terms. Thus, the mischief of any individual in that office is limited in time, even if he by personality or chicanery should overcome other limitations stipulated by the Constitution. Roosevelt, during his 12 years in the Presidency, effected a fundamental revolution which may have been completed in the Eisenhower Administration. It was a political revolution, strengthening not only the Executive authority beyond the intent of the Constitution, but turning the Federal Government into a central government. And thus weakening the states. Roosevelt gained increasing popularity because of these acts which violated American tradition, and the White population of the South, who are now most opposed to the consequences of Roosevelt's program, gave him a political support which kept him in office as long as he lived.

In our society, personality is always likely to be the strongest factor in politics because of the nature of our elections, now aggravated by the use of television. This means that height, girth, clothes, the photogenic characteristics of the face, voice and gesture are as important political factors as intelligence and character. If women ran for President, we should probably put down their measurements, 38-24-36 or whatever happens to be popular at the moment. Intelligence and character cannot be so readily measured and generally are not fully appraised until a man is long dead.

sent letters to State and highway officials stating their approval and support and urging speedy approval and construction of the highway. In their letters, these organizations particularly emphasized the advantages and extreme importance of an interchange within East Stroudsburg at Prospect Street for the continued welfare of business, industrial and resort activity in our borough and the Eastern Poconos, and for the alleviation of the serious traffic congestion within the two towns and on surrounding roads. I believe that these local business and resort organizations, the State Highway Department, and the engineering firm making the surveys are in a better position to know what will serve the best interest of the area than is this small group of East Stroudsburg residents.

Your editorial of July 25, in which you urge support of the Thruway with the interchanges in both boroughs as planned for the complete realization of the full benefits and purposes of the Thruway, expresses our organization's sentiments also on this important matter. We urge everyone who

The Daily Record
Stroudsburg, Pa.
Dear Sir:

Ever since the proposed route of the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg Thruway was made public last year, a small minority group of East Stroudsburg residents have been making efforts to have the interchange at Prospect Street alleviated and change the course of the route recommended by the Highway Department and the engineering firm making the survey.

This group making the opposition is by no means a representation of the entire borough of East Stroudsburg and they must not be construed as such by the public or by the State and highway officials to whom they are appealing. The group is made up largely of residents of the East Stroudsburg First Ward near whose residences the proposed Thruway will pass. Today the Daily Record reported of their plan to visit Harrisburg to "suggest that the road and interchanges affecting East Stroudsburg be so located as to provide a more favorable service to the best interests of the borough." What is in the best interest of the borough cannot be stated factually by a small group of citizens residing in one small area who may be thinking too much of their own personal property rather than what will benefit the entire area.

When the recommended route of the Thruway was first publicized, the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce, the Eastern Pocono Resort Association, the East Stroudsburg Merchants Association, and other organizations in the two boroughs put themselves on record as favoring the proposed route with the interchange at Prospect Street and

Dreaming May Take Place Of Building Actual Home

Just on the off-chance of building our dream house some day, we keep a file of colored clippings separated under headings living room, bedroom, kitchen, arbor, solarium, grand ballroom, stables, covered tennis courts and various tenant houses for the help. (If you have to dream, make it big.)

As with most files, this one is useless. Today's trend in interior design is toward making each and every room into a one-room apartment. Self-contained units, divided, if at all, by cut out shelving or curtains flopping about on concealed tracks.

Take the kitchens illustrated in all fine mags devoted to helping mother get shut of her household chores. A fireplace? Of course. Who wants a mere stove when one can skewer the pot roast on a fender's weapon, letting it drip and turn the good old-fashioned way? Check, fireplace a "must."

A couch? Why, you don't want poor old Mom a-wearying herself over that cornbread! (Same neatly packaged and stored in the freezer, but no matter. Momma gets tired opening the freezer door. And let's get some automatic doors, fellows.) So what better spot for a couch than in the kitchen! Too, Pappa likes to supervise Mom's cookery in comfort.

A TV set? It's terribly gauche to park this picture machine in the parlor. Televised cooking schools require a do-it-yourself attitude from the not-too-busy-to-learn housewife. Check, TV in the kitchen.

A rocking chair? A south window stretched out to the sun's exposure to form a greenhouse? Check. A desk where the bills can pay themselves? And don't forget that playpen where the baby can amuse himself. Check.

Some kitchen, I say. But though one could spend a lifetime here quite comfortably, there are other rooms.

The bedroom, we find, should have most of the same features as has the kitchen. The bed, just for emphasis, could go in the bedroom unless you prefer the look of a sitting room. In which case, stow the bed in that corner under the eaves. A fireplace? Check. An hot plate for making coffee. Saves steps in the kitchen. Saves strength. And a rocking chair by another south window full of plants.

The bar? A drink tastes better when one can toast his toes on the fireplace fender. Check, fireplace in bar. A small ice box here will save more steps and strength. And a convenient chafing dish plugged in for easy winter suppers.

Living and dining rooms have this same adaptability, with their own rocking chairs, TV sets, planted windows and an outlet for peche Melba flambe.

The garage remains its original function as a place for the car. Except that Pop has his workshop out there plus a discarded rocking chair and a beat-up couch for when he gets tired sawing. Plus a fireplace (small) for melting and soldering and such.

Where am I? Why have seven rooms when a single room has everything?

Robert S. Allen Reports

Kefauver's Decision To Withdraw Complete Change

EDITOR'S NOTE:—Kefauver has withdrawn from the Democratic race, but we are running today's column by Robert S. Allen in order to give some background to the move.

Washington, August 2 — Senator Estes Kefauver may pull a spectacular switch in signals!

Under this extraordinary plan the Tennesseean, before the Chicago convention opens on August 13, would announce that he is quitting as a presidential candidate, and shifting to running for the vice presidency.

This dramatic last-minute switch was recommended to Kefauver by a majority of his leaders in 15 states, following a secret strategy conference in Washington.

Last week-end, he hurriedly summoned them to this two-day meeting after a lengthy pow-wow between "Jiggs" Donohue, Kefauver's national manager, and two of Governor Harriman's closest advisers—Judge Sam Rosenbaum, biographer and lieutenant of the late President Roosevelt, and George Backer, wealthy New York realtor.

Prior to this discussion, Kefauver and his top chiefs had concluded they had no choice except to wage a last-ditch convention fight. For that purpose, they agreed to raise $15,000 for anti-candidate expenses. But following Donohue's significant talk with Harriman's spokesmen, Kefauver decided to put his future course up to his state leaders.

Most of them agreed on two things: The Tennesseean has no chance to get the presidential nomination. His smashing defeats in the Florida and California primaries knocked him completely out of the running for that.

Many delegates of other candidates favor Kefauver for running mate, and will vote for him for that if they get the chance. For this reason, Kefauver should announce before the convention that he is shifting to the vice presidency and demand a wide-open contest on that.

The question over which the Kefauver leaders were at greatest variance was whether, in renouncing his presidential aspirations, he should declare for Stevenson or Harriman.

The state lieutenant argued this issue hot and heavy.

Now they feel — A majority of them were pro-Stevenson. But Harriman had militant advocates. Significantly, with a few exceptions they were all Westerners. Little enthusiasm was evinced for the New York Governor by Eastern Kefauverites.

Foremost among the Stevenson partisans were "Jiggs" Donohue, Mrs. Clara Shipper, outgoing California National Committee woman, and former Representative Andrew Jacobs, Ind. They vigorously urged an alliance with Stevenson on the ground that would ensure his nomination on the first ballot and thus greatly boost Kefauver's prospects for second place.

Sally Keeps Looking For Mistakes

By Jim Riley

Sally Repsher, former proofreader for The Daily Record, now living on Okinawa where her husband is stationed with the U. S. Army, has got herself a new job. Doing what? You guessed it — proof-reading.

Seems there is a paper called "The Okinawa Star" whose publisher was in need of a good proofreader. Heard about Sally and asked her to take the job. She agreed.

Now she's back at the same old grind again—plus taking care of her son, looking after the household (with the help of natives who are willing to work and eager to help. Sally says in letters home). Same hours, too—from 7 p. m. to 1 a. m.

Not only that, but she keeps folks back home up-to-date on happenings here. Sent her mother a copy of David Dempsey's book "Flood" so she'd be sure to see it.

What makes the job really terrific is the fact that the work is brought to Sally, at her home. It is also picked up once Sally, who used to live on Crystal St., East Stroudsburg, has found all the mistakes.

Stock Market Mixed As Volume Drops

NEW YORK, Aug. 1 (AP)—The stock market was thoroughly mixed as volume declined today.

Key stocks fluctuated from fractions to around 2 points with a few moving beyond that range.

The market showed a slightly higher trend in the morning but turned irregular by afternoon. A number of leading metals and oils which enjoyed yesterday's rise took moderate losses today.

Pivotal steels were down unanimously. International oils backed away from gains of yesterday although there were no drastic changes in the Suez Canal situation. The aircrafts, however, were fairly steady.

Dip
Volume dipped to 2,250,000 shares from 2,520,000 yesterday. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed unchanged at $100.70, with the industrials unchanged, the rails up 20 cents and the utilities down 10 cents.

Of the 1,165 issues traded there were 461 advances and 434 declines. There were 46 new highs for the year and 13 new lows.

Sperry Rand was the day's most active stock, up 1/2 at 27 1/4 on 52,400 shares. Second was U. S. Steel, off 1/4 at 64 1/2 on 39,600 shares.

The American Stock Exchange was irregular with volume of 1,050,000 shares compared with 1,160,000 yesterday.

Corporate bonds were lower. U. S. government bonds declined in the over the counter market.

At present there is no definite indication that such a large-scale meeting will be held. During recent months political commentators have noted repeatedly that the organization may "sit out" the 1956 Presidential campaign without open endorsement of any candidate.

Both Reuther and Meany have added substance to this theory in their public speeches recently. Reuther, especially, has served notice that unless civil rights and labor relation planks in either platform conform with the combined union's views, labor may withhold its endorsement this year.

The Aug. 27 meeting at Unity House sets an historic precedent and adds an additional feather to the cap of David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

For the past decade Dubinsky has been trying to convince AFL and CIO leaders—then separate organizations with individual leadership—to hold their Summer conference at Unity. The resort is owned and operated by the ILGWU for its workers and their families. It is located near Bushkill in the Poconos.

Until this year Dubinsky had no field Park, N. J. Tuesday and visited Miss Bates, Aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bates, for several days. While there they spent a day in New York City.

Top Labor Officials To Attend National Executive Committee Conference At Unity

GEORGE MEANY and Walter Reuther head the list of labor notables slated to attend an AFL-CIO National Executive Committee conference at Unity House beginning Monday, Aug. 27.

Meany is president of the combined AFL-CIO organization; Reuther is first vice president. It is the largest and most powerful labor union group in the U. S., now having 138 affiliated unions.

According to a conference spokesman at AFL-CIO headquarters in Washington yesterday afternoon, the Unity House meeting is being held Aug. 27 "so that it will follow both national political conventions."

The same spokesman said, however, that he seriously doubts whether the executive committee will endorse any candidate or either party at the Unity House meeting.

Opportunity

Walter Reuther

luck with his entreaties. This year, six months after the giant AFL-CIO combination became official, he got a "yes" answer.

Political observers on the national scene may be expected to "read something" else into the AFL-CIO committee decision to hold its conference at Unity.

Dubinsky and most of the other prominent high officials of the ILGWU is an ardent supporter of Adlai E. Stevenson for the Democratic nomination. At a New York meeting of garment workers union officials Dubinsky urged liberals to unite behind Stevenson.

This action might have escaped notice, except as a passing political comment, had it not been for Dubinsky's timing. It was at this same series of conferences that the union leader's long-time friend Averell Harriman chose to "throw his hat in the ring" for the nomination.

With the withdrawal of Estes Kefauver from the race this week, Harriman and Stevenson are left to battle it out for the Democratic top spot. Dubinsky continues to advocate Stevenson as the best man for the job.

Dubinsky is known also as a good, persevering salesman. An AFL-CIO official yesterday told The Daily Record by telephone from Washington that all members of the executive committee are looking forward to their stay at Unity House.

"Whether you know it or not, Dave Dubinsky is a one-man Chamber of Commerce for Unity and the Pocono Mountains," the spokesman said.

Unity House will be familiar ground for George Meany. He attended the grand opening of the garment workers' union's new $750,000 theater in June and gave one of two main addresses heard at that celebration.

The August 27 meeting will probably continue through the 30th or 31st, a spokesman said last night.

Jury Reveals Cause Of Woman's Death

HONESDALE, Aug. 1 (AP)—A Wayne County coroner's jury today returned a verdict of "methyl alcohol poisoning" in the death of Mrs. Helen Nason, 58, a reporter on the Honesdale Citizen-Times newspaper.

Found
Mrs. Nason was found dead in bed last June 30 by her husband, Harry Nason, editor of the Honesdale newspaper. A Federal Bureau of Investigation report read to the jury by the coroner said that strong concentrations of alcohol were found in her blood and stomach.

The official jury verdict said Mrs. Nason died of "methyl alcohol poisoning administered by a person or persons unknown."

In the cell he found three strange young women. They explained they had walked into the cell to see what it looked like and the door had swung shut and locked automatically behind them.

Fifty-Four Families Make Down Payments On Homes

FIFTY-FOUR FAMILIES have already made a $100-down payment on homes being erected by the Monroe County Land and Building Co.

Rev. Roger C. Stinson, company president, said about 50 percent of these families were affected by last year's flood.

The foundations for three units have already passed their first compliance inspections and were found to meet FHA requirements, Mr. Stinson said. He further indicated that the first pre-cut home should arrive here by next week, and should be ready for occupancy in 60 days.

Continuing
Mr. Stinson said building is expected to continue until all of the homes are erected.

The homes will be located on a 46-acre tract off W. Main St., owned by the land and building company. It will be known as Dogwood Gardens.

Installation of water piping has been delayed by the steel strike, the clergyman said. However, it is hoped that it will be available shortly.

The $7,000 to $9,000 dwellings are being purchased with the help of long-term, low-interest FHA guaranteed, and VA insured, mortgages.

The Treasury announced it has placed under temporary licensing controls all assets of the Egyptian government and the Suez Canal Co. located in the United States.

It was a surprise move. Controls will remain in effect, the treasury said, "pending determination of the ownership of these assets and clarification of the existing situation."

Earlier in the day, apparently at the urging of Britain and France, President Eisenhower decided to have Dulles participate personally in the London conference on what to do about Egypt's seizure of the Suez Canal. The waterway is of great strategic importance to the West.

White House Reply
The White House, replying to a reporter's questions, disclosed that President Eisenhower has heard directly from Prime Minister Eden of England and Premier Mollet of France on the Suez trouble.

Murray Snyder, assistant press secretary, said "The President has heard from Prime Minister Eden, directly and indirectly, several times since this began. He has also been in touch with Premier Mollet, directly and through representatives of the U. S. and no comment or the content of any particular communication or communications."

The Treasury edict was not as sweeping as Britain's action Saturday in freezing assets of the Egyptian government and of all Egypt's banks, trading companies and individuals.

Private Egyptian funds will not be affected by the American order, the Treasury said.

But the order will prevent the Egyptian government and the canal company which it now apparently controls, from spending, transferring, withdrawing or otherwise using their American assets without advance Treasury authorization.

Neither the Treasury nor the Egyptian Embassy here could furnish an immediate estimate of how much money is involved. The order covers not only cash but gold, stocks and bonds and real estate, an Egyptian spokesman said it tied up all embassy and consulate funds, as well as those for the Egyptian mission to the United Nations.

Two Wrecks Occur On Same Highway

MARSHALLS CREEK — Two accidents — almost identical in every respect — occurred within the space of 10 minutes yesterday afternoon on Route 209 near here.

Stroudsburg State Police attributed both mishaps to unusually deep berm. The Highway Department was notified of the condition.

The first accident occurred at 1:15 p.m., on Route 209 about nine miles east of East Stroudsburg, when a car operated by Dominick Lande, 67, of Brooklyn, N.Y., went on the berm, and then shot back across the highway and overturned.

Lande's 62-year-old wife, Josephine, suffered a laceration of the right forearm and body bruises. She was taken to General Hospital where her condition was reported to be satisfactory last night.

Damage to the car was pegged at $100.

Same Situation

Meanwhile, as Trooper Peter A. Walsh was on his way to investigate the Lande mishap he came upon another about seven miles east of East Stroudsburg on 209.

Walsh found a late model sedan, driven by Arnold Weiner, 26, of Unity House, Bushkill, also ran off the road and overturned. State Police said this accident also occurred as the motorist was attempting to get back on the highway after hitting the berm.

Weiner escaped injury, but about $700 damage was caused to his car.

The berm in this area is between four inches and a foot below the highway, State Police disclosed.

Wedding At Zion Union Church Sat.

Brodheads — The Zion Union Church, Brodheads, was the scene of a pretty summer wedding on Saturday, July 14, at 4 p.m. when Mrs. Arlene Rittenhouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amel Altomero, Brodheads, became the bride of Lewis Horne, son of Roger Horne of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Mt. Pocono, and the late Mrs. Horne.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Adan Bohner, pastor of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Brodheads before a candlelit altar. The altar was filled with white gladioli.

Mrs. Myrtle Bodenbaugh was organist, and the soloist was Mrs. Jeanne May, Mount Pocono, who sang "At Dawning," "O Promise Me" and "O Perfect Love." Altar boy was Donald Brong, nephew of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina-length gown of pale blue nylon dotted Swiss with a scoop neckline. The gown featured a long torso waistline encircled with white baby rickrack, which also trimmed the neckline. The full skirt had a small back bustle. Her hat was of pale blue shantung, trimmed with dotted Swiss, and her mitts were of pale blue nylon net and her shoes of pale blue brocade. She wore a double strand of pearls and carried a bouquet of white carnations, centered with a lavender orchid.

Miss Patricia Rittenhouse, the bride's daughter, was her only attendant. She wore an exact replica of the bride's gown in pink and carried a nosegay of pink and blue mums.

James Horne, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man while Martin Leshner of Nazareth, nephew of the bridegroom, and Norman May of Mount Pocono, served as ushers.

The bride's mother wore a black and white ensemble of lace over taffeta with white accessories. The bridegroom's stepmother wore a pink summer knitted dress with white accessories. Both had corsages of yellow rosebuds.

A reception for 175 guests was held immediately following the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride, a graduate of Chestnut Hill High School and the Rudemar School of Beauty Culture, was employed by Vassar Bag Co., Stroudsburg.

The bridegroom attended Pocono High School and is a veteran of three and a half years in the U. S. Air Force, serving in the Indo-China and Burma Theatre. He is employed by the Pennsylvania Power and Light Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Horne are at home to their friends in their new house in Brodheads.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

One reason women like to change furniture around occasionally is because it's one way to counteract the kind of mental blindness that sets in when surroundings become too familiar. Pictures hung in the same place for a long time will sort of melt into the wall-paper as far as the family is concerned.

We look, but do not see the furniture—even such a substantial thing as a sofa. Which is probably just as well, particularly when it begins to get shabby.

There are two other ways to strip the blinders from your eyes: come back from a trip or have company coming. After a trip, the rooms always seem bigger, but the cracks and the handprints along the stairs always seem more noticeable, too.

And it takes company coming to make you really notice how cluttered with unnecessary things the book shelves and piano top have become.

Of course, I don't exactly regard my son as company, but anyway he's coming home and I took a good look at his room yesterday. Suddenly I saw the frieze around the top of the wall. Cunning little circus animals, a blue elephant and a very orange lion, cages and zebras, they are.

Oh I remember seeing it before when we put it up—but that was many years ago, and I doubt if either he or I have really seen that border for years. Not even when I was dusting it for cobwebs.

However, I'm afraid he will see it when he comes home—and circus animals, however cunning, are scarcely appropriate for a young man who's been responsible for his own support and his own behavior all summer.

If I hadn't noticed, however, I wouldn't be going around with a wry neck. Scraping wall-paper is a chore at anytime, but spraying a top border is worst of all. There's no place to put your head.

It might have been better to keep the blinders intact. The circus animals might have come as a shock, but perhaps not as much as a wry-necked mother. I keep remembering that he'll be seeing me with fresh eyes, too.

Tips To Ease Motoring With Children

AP Newsfeatures
That family motor trip can be a pain or a pleasure, according to the amount of advance planning that goes into it.

It's up to Pop to see that the engine is tuned up to top efficiency and that the tires are equal to the demands of a long trip, to work out the route from road maps before the takeoff and to make advance reservations for stopovers.

But Mom can add to the ease of the vacation trip, too, by stocking up on some simple staple supplies.

Every motoring family should be supplied with a kit of paper plates, napkins and cleansing tissues for protecting upholstery and clothes during snacks en route. Those foil-packed tissues saturated with cleansing lotion are great for mopping ice cream off of small faces and hands.

A complete first-aid kit is a must, especially if the children are going along. Minor emergencies always come up during any family excursion, so Mom should see that the kit is well-stocked with adhesive bandages, gauze, disinfectants and ointments for insect bites and poison ivy as well as sunburn preventives.

A box of plain baking soda in the glove compartment can have many uses, from treating bee-stings to wiping the windshield. The wise mother also will have on hand a few items to keep the small fry amused and quiet during long stretches on the road. Toy stores usually have games especially planned for motor trips—log books of the trip, games based on identifying automobile licenses, puzzles and other devices.

Come summertime, most of the nation seems to be on wheels, and so it's wise to be prepared with ways to ease the rigors of the open road.

I like people... particularly people with courage. That, I think, is one reason why I so sincerely admire Helen Samuels, who is spending this week in our store demonstrating Spice Islands seasonings. Helen hasn't been the easiest life possible for a woman, and it isn't particularly relaxing to be constantly on the go between Florida, Maine and such mid-western cities as Detroit and Chicago... but if she's worried, depressed or exhausted, you'd never guess it from her manner. "Long ago I learned how important it is to keep smiling," she tells you. And as she speaks, she smiles at you, not just with her lips, but with her eyes, which are large, warm, and intensely black.

Helen Samuels has been working for years... but with her career was a matter of necessity rather than desire. She loves her work and puts her heart in it, yet I am certain that given her choice she'd be back in Wilkes-Barre, quietly enjoying her two grandchildren and sharing the daily confidences of her three daughters. It was fate... or, as Helen herself would put it, "God watching over me"... that put Mrs. Samuels on the road in a job that is mentally stimulating, physically lucrative, but relentlessly exacting. "One day in Kentucky, I was walking along feeling so lonely I thought I couldn't endure it another minute," she recalls. "Just then a stranger passed by and gave me one of the most wonderful, friendly smiles I've ever seen. I can't begin to tell you how much it did for me. I went right back to my hotel and wrote my daughters, telling them never to forget to smile. A smile does something for the giver as well as the recipient... I try to remember that."

Being a demonstrator can be an exacting job Helen says, and she should know. She has demonstrated rug cleaner, squeeze mops, plastic floor coatings, and a variety of other merchandise in the years since she began to wander afield from her home town, Wilkes-Barre. Her first demonstration began as a terrific flop and ended on a note of success that astounded both the store and her company. Timidity played a part in this. Needing her job so desperately, Mrs. Samuels had been afraid to demand a good location... so, week after week she plugged away, with an intensity that probably frightened the customers... in a poor spot, and with no success at all. Only when it was explained to her that every inch of store space represents dollars and cents and must pay off, and that she had been a failure, did she begin to fight. She demanded another chance in a good first floor location. Her style of approach changed too, and in two days sales were mounting so beautifully that her stay was extended time and again until she had rather a long visit.

Some time later, during a visit with Woodward & Lothrop in Washington, D. C., her demonstrating technique impressed a Spice Islands demonstrator and supervisor. The offer to become one of the eight women, traveling for this very distinguished company followed, and Helen Samuels knew that she had achieved a very comfortable niche in a very difficult field. She has her own style. Neither a Barker nor a high pressure gal, she wins confidence with her friendly graciousness, and her desire to please the customers rather than to overwhelm them. The result is she rings the bell... both with her popularity and her cash intake. What's more she thinks Spice Islands company is the finest ever, and holds her boss, Mr. Frederic H. Johnson, president, in the highest esteem both as a business man and friend. He's like our "Papa" Wyckoff, we rather... always interested in the problems of his employees, and accessible to them by visit or telephone. I mentioned the wonderful letter offering assistance he had written me after last August's flood. Her eyes brightened. "That sounds like him," she said. "That's the kind of a gentleman he is."

Helen Samuels will be in our store through Saturday demonstrating Spice Islands seasonings, and the quickly made Pate Neapolitan, Pate Bœuf Monde, Sour Cream and Dill, Tartar Sauce with Dill and other hors d'oeuvres and dressings. Talk with her. You'll find her a most interesting person, with hints on food preparation as delightful as her personality.

Strouds Dump Bangor Foe Under Lights, 9-4

Radlmen Pick Up 21st Victory

BANGOR — The Strouds, regular season champions of the Pocono Mountains League, stepped out into the baseball exhibition was last night and dealt Bangor a 9-4 defeat under the lights. The game was played at Memorial Park.

Bangor is a member of the Bi-State League.

Last night's victory was the 21st of the season for the high flying Strouds, a club that has dropped only one decision this campaign.

Harold "Jack" Jacobsen, strong armed right-hander was the winning hurler, but needed help from crafty Frank Radler, team manager, in the sixth frame.

The Strouds lashed out 10 hits, with Dave Nevil, Dick Gray, Dan Eppley and Paul "Doc" Lim leading the way with two safeties each. Charley "Snook" Litts and Randy Morris each collected one hit.

Morris made a bid for a home run in the ninth inning, but Dominic DeFranco hauled down the longest ball of the game just before it dropped into the right field stands.

Big Gun

DeFranco was the toughest man on the field for Bangor. In addition to starting attack, the former Bangor High student lashed an inside park homer in the fifth frame and a triple in the second round. DeFranco also singled in the sixth before fanning in the eighth.

The Strouds got to Larry Raph for a single run in the third and three more in the fourth and a singleton in the fifth, when Ed Gruver took over the mound chores.

The Pocono Mountains League representative bounced back with two more counters in the sixth and two in the ninth.

Jacobsen was working on a shut-out until Bangor pushed a run into paydirt in the fifth and Radler came rushing to the mound when the host club picked up three counters in the sixth.

The Strouds return to circuit action on Sunday when they oppose Bushkill, on the latter's home field.

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 1 (AP)—Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus easily outdistanced four other contenders for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in yesterday's primary on the basis of near-complete unofficial returns.

Faubus was still receiving congratulations today when he swung his attention to national politics and commented that Adlai Stevenson appeared headed for the Democratic presidential nomination on an early ballot.

The governor, whose victory is tantamount to a second term election in one-party Arkansas, would not commit the Arkansas delegation to Stevenson but is regarded as a Stevenson supporter.

Tabulation

At the end of the unofficial tabulation, with 2,293 of 2,333 precincts reported; the vote was:

Faubus 178,301; Jim Johnson, Crosssett, 82,629; Jim Snoddy, Alma, 42,769; S. K. Prosser, Conway, 1,687 and Ben F. Pippin, Little Rock, 1,391.

In the only congressional race, veteran Rep. W. F. Norrell easily led two attorneys from Pine Bluff, his opponents, but apparently lacked about 400 votes of winning a majority. Unless the official count changes the race, Norrell will meet Pat Mullis in a runoff Aug. 14.

Arkansas Rep. Brooks Hays of the 5th (Little Rock) Dist. was not on the ballot yesterday because he has only one opponent. All two-man races are decided in the runoff primary.

Nebel's Market Uses Fast Start To Decision Gray's

NEBEL'S MARKET bunched its scoring in the early innings last night and rolled to a 9-5 victory over Gray's Chevrolet, a Monroe County Softball League tussle.

The game was played at Stroudsburg Playground.

Nebel's club jumped into a 2-0 lead at the end of the first inning and then scored six times in the second and once in the third.

Gray's contingent tried desperately to pull the verdict out of the fire with a four-run outburst in the top of the third stanza, but the spurt failed.

John Possinger and Dick Pennington led the winning attack with two hits each, while Bob Rice, Don Miller, Ted Roscher and Tom Cammella collected all of the losing squad's hits.

Today's schedule will pit Tobyhanna Signal Depot against IAM at Stroudsburg Playground. Action is set for 6:15 p.m.

Hart Becomes Holdout Against Lions

DETROIT, Aug. 1 (AP)—Leon Hart said today he may retire from professional football unless he can reach agreement on a 1956 contract with the Detroit Lions.

The former All-America end from Notre Dame, who has played six seasons in the National Football League, officially became a holdout today as Lion veterans assembled for training at nearby Ypsilanti.

The Lions' management said it is at "substantial odds" over a new contract for the 6-5, 250 pounder.

Hart would not disclose what he had asked and the Lions refused to say what they offered.

Dodgers Clip Braves, 2-1

BROOKLYN, Aug. 1 (AP)—Dale Mitchell, who joined Brooklyn from Cleveland just 24 hours earlier, beat out a pinch-hit infield chopper to drive in the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning tonight, beating Milwaukee 2-1 and hoisting the third-place Dodgers to within three games of the National League-leading Braves.

The high bouncer to third baseman Ed Matthews, which the 35-year-old Mitchell just beat out, knocked out a brilliant pitching job by right-hander Lew Burdette, who struck out 10 while taking his 6th defeat in 18 decisions.

Relief

Clem Labine won his second in many nights, coming on in relief of Sal Maglie when the Braves tied it 1-1 in the seventh inning.

Jackie Robinson opened the deciding eighth for the Brooks with a single to left and churned on to second when Bobby Thompson bopped the pick up. Gil Hodges sacrificed Jackie to third. Second baseman Jack Dittmer then made a leaping stab of Sandy Amoros' chop and threw him out while Robinson held third. Burdette next walked Roy Campanella intentionally and Mitchell, picked up for the waiver price from the Indians, then delivered the payoff.

Duke Snider, who had been hitless in 13 official trips to the plate, had shoved the Dodgers into a 1-0 lead with his 26th home run to open the fourth inning. "The blow, a solid sock to the left field seats, broke a tie with Cincinnati's Ted Kluszewski for the NL homer lead.

Maglie, the 39-year-old Dodger killer, was working beautifully with a five-hitter until the seventh, when Chuck Tanner and Wes Covington hit pinch singles and Billy Bruton followed with a hit to left to load the bases with one out.

Labine, now 9-4, came on and got Henry Aaron to hit to first baseman Hodges, who tossed to the plate to force Tanner. Catcher Campanella feigned a throw to second, but the ball slipped from his hands and Covington charged in with the tying run.

Brother Record

THE DIMAGGIOs hold the brother record for All-Star game appearances. Joe DiMaggio played in 11 games and Don DiMaggio was in six.

Harvie Ward, 1955 National Amateur golf champion, won the National Collegiate crown while playing for North Carolina in 1949.

Indians Top Yankees On Lemon's Work

CLEVELAND, Aug. 1 (AP)—Bob Lemon pitched the Cleveland Indians to a 5-1 victory over the New York Yankees tonight, aided by four double plays. The 35-year-old righthander, shelled from the mound in the second inning of the series opener Monday, came back with a six-hit performance, missing a shutout on a homer by Hank Bauer.

The Indians scored all their runs in the first two innings to give Tommy Burne, 36-year-old southpaw, his second defeat in eight decisions. Rip Coleman and Mickey McDermott blanked the Indians the rest of the way, with McDermott fanning seven in the last five innings.

Singles

Until Bauer's homer in the fifth, the only hits off Lemon were singles by Bill Skowron and Andy Carey. Both were wiped out by double plays. Two more Indian doubleplays wiped out Yankee threats in the sixth and seventh innings.

The Indians scored two in the first on a walk, a double by Al Smith, and a single by Vic Wertz. Smith's second double, with the bases loaded in the second, scored two more, and another came across on a grounder by Wertz.

Lemon ended Mickey Mantle's record of hitting safely in every game against the Indians this year. Mantle flied out in the first and sixth, walked in the fourth, and grounded out in the ninth.

Starters

Starter Ronnie Kline allowed a leadoff single to Ken Boyer and seemed out of trouble as he got the next two batters. Then outfielder Lee Walls misjudged Charley Peete's fly and it fell safely for a run-scoring triple. Third baseman Frank Thomas then booted a grounder by Hal Smith and Peete came home.

In the seventh the Cards scored their other two runs on a two-out triple by Stan Musial. It tallied Schmidt, who had singled and Don Blasingame who had walked.

The Pirates' lone tally came in the second when the Pirates got three of their hits. A potential rally was cut down when Bob Clemente tried to go from first to third on a single and was caught off second base.

Top Producer

THE MOST runs driven in by a Cincinnati Redleg third baseman in one season was 78. Cleveland coach Tony Cuccinello (1930) and Hans Lobert (1908) share that record.

No Regrets, winner of the California Derby, did not race as a 2-year-old because he had bucked shins twice and once got a piece of gravel in his foot.

Sports Trail - -

By Whitney Martin

By WHITNEY MARTIN
NEW YORK, Aug. 1 (AP)—Wayne "Doc" Anderson is a nice-looking, pleasant fellow whose job is to keep the Cincinnati Reds in the pink, you might say. You'd never take him to be a con man.

But as trainer of the ball club he admits you have to rub in a little psychology along with liniment, and the job he did in convincing Ewell Blackwell into pitching winning baseball back in 1951 probably rates as his masterpiece.

"The winter before I was in Los Angeles and met Bob Scheffing's brother-in-law, who was in the drug business," Doc says. "He showed me some pink aspirins, and asked me if I wanted some."

"I took a few, with nothing particular in mind. One day early in the '51 season Blackie came to me complaining his arm didn't feel so well. I'd done all I could, but suddenly I thought of the pink pills."

Same Treatment
"I slipped him one and said: 'Here, take this, but keep it quiet.' Blackie stuck it in his mouth and gulped water, then went out to pitch. About the third inning he looked toward me and sort of winced, so I slipped him another, and he was all right."

"Well, he won 16 games that season. Didn't know until later I was just giving him aspirin."

Anderson also revealed that shortstop Roy McMillan played the last 31 games last season with a cracked bone in the thumb of his throwing hand.

"We knew it was cracked by the way it would swell up whenever he used it, but we also knew he wouldn't hurt it any more if it was bound tightly with tape. We never told him, though. After the season we had it fixed up." Another con job.

Anderson is a staunch defender of the present-day athletes when it comes to ruggedness and durability.

"They're just as tough as the old timers," he insists. "Training methods have changed. A lot of the old-time trainers were just what we call trunk men. They didn't know about diathermy and whirlpool baths and such things. Now there is a National League rule that all visiting clubhouses must have diathermy machines and whirlpools."

Anderson has had unusual success in keeping pitchers fit, and credits it to thorough conditioning in the spring, and to daily rub-downs.

One Turn
"None of our pitchers has missed a turn on the mound this year because of arm trouble," he says. "Joe Nuxhall missed one turn, but he hurt his shoulder muscles swinging at a ball."

"A couple of years ago Fred Baczewski, another pitcher, hurt himself batting, too, only he fouled the ball down on his foot."

"That's a common injury. Certain players are more apt to do it than others. Those that take a long stride do it often. Dale Long of the Pirates wears a shield to protect his instep when he bats, and Grady Hatton, when he was with us, had orders to wear such a protector."

"Joe Marty and Joe Gordon were great ones to foul a ball off their feet. I notice that Stan Musial did it the other day."

Anderson says the Reds have no physical complaints right now, so if they don't win they can't blame it on the miseries. And you wouldn't guess the most frequent visitor to the rubbing table. He's big, rugged, unbreakable Ted Kluszewski.

"He's so heavy his hips get tired," Doc explained. "He's on the table a half hour every day."

Delaney Seen New Star At Nazareth Oval

NAZARETH—A new star is rising at the half-mile race track in the Nazareth Fairgrounds—Jim Delaney, Hope, N. J.

He is the leadfoot stock car driver who last Sunday night whipped Otto Harwi, Easton, in a slambang 25-lap feature event. In doing so, Delaney snapped Harwi's three-feature streak.

Delaney and Harwi, and 48 other New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Florida drivers, will be back this coming Sunday night, 8:15 o'clock, for a resumption of the red-hot speed feud.

Special Event
There will be a special attraction, a destruction derby.

Harwi, the 1955 champion and 1956 point leader, was seriously challenged by other drivers besides the fleet Delaney. They include Ken Marriot, Baltimore, Md.; Ralph Smith, Aberdeen, Md.; Sonny Strupp, S. Plainfield, N. J.; Jack Borgstesser, Phillipsburg, N. J.; Fred Fehr, Easton, and Shorty Kershner, Reading.

55 MPH
The 50 stock cars, running on the Atlantic seaboard's fastest clay saucer, set speeds up to 95 miles an hour last week.

Delaney, one of the Garden State's most spectacular drivers, will head the field this week when the sensational races are resumed.

Hank Aaron has a .299 batting average for three seasons with the Milwaukee Braves.

The scale tilted the other way for veteran Joey Maxim. The former light-heavyweight champion was dropped from the elite list of the 175-pounders for the first time in many years. Tony Anthony of New York replaced the clever Cleveland, taking over the No. 7 spot among the contenders.

Light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore was awarded "Fighter of the Month" honors by Ring Editor Nat Fleischer for his easy conquest of towering James J. Parker of Canada.

France's Robert Cohen, who lost his bantamweight crown to Italy's Mario d'Agata, was given the No. 2 position behind Mexico's Raul (Raton) Macias. Macias is recognized as the 118-pound king by the NBA.

Big Ten To Consider New Code

CHICAGO, Aug. 1 (AP)—The Big 10, ruffled by a national magazine's purported expose of loose conference athletic practices, will meet this weekend to consider a "standard" code for financing athletes through college.

Saturday and Sunday's special session on athletic policy was scheduled long before a story, written for tomorrow's issue of Look magazine, hung a "football scandal" label on Big 10 aid to athletes.

A conference spokesman, who declined to be identified, asserted today that the Look item, citing "full ride" scholarships for football players and other alleged irregularities, proved no condemnation of the Big 10.

The Look charges and possible Big 10 code revisions are expected to be discussed at the weekend convocation.

The spokesman declared that for the past decade the Big 10 has made no bones about trying to help athletes through school with measured financial help, but only if they were of academic worth.

This help takes the form of tuition payment if an athlete maintains a C average or in excess of tuition for a better than C mark.

Jobs also help the aspiring Big 10 athlete, although this has become a touchy point because of the time available for such employment during a particular sports season.

Example
Look related, for instance, that Minnesota has split up its work-for-pay program to suit off-season availability of athletes.

The conference spokesman said that a report by a special committee, which for seven months has been studying Big 10 athletic practices, could possibly call for a "sort of union scale" for athletes.

Such a plan would suggest that each of the 10 conference members would face the same requirements for awarding grants-in-aid or jobs. At present, interpretation of scholarship standards vary at the different schools. Jobs for athletes also have been at a school's discretion.

Forest Hills Site Of 'Cup' Zone Finals
MILAN, Italy, Aug. 1 (AP)—The interzone Davis Cup finals between the United States and Italy will be played Sept. 28-30 at Forest Hills, N. Y. Ciro Aldo Tolusso, president of the Italian Lawn Tennis Federation, said yesterday.

The United States first must eliminate Mexico in the American Zone finals at Rye, N. Y., this weekend. It would be a mammoth upset if the Mexicans defeat Uncle Sam's veteran squad, led by Internationalist Vic Seixas and Ham Richardson.

Tolusso said the Italian Federation had received a cable from the U. S. Lawn Tennis Assn. today saying that the American players would be unable to come to Italy for the matches.

U. S. Definite
"Considering the circumstances," Tolusso said, "we have definitely decided to play in the United States."

The winner of the interzone series will meet India's Asian Zone champions for the right to face Australia's Cup holders in the challenge round at Adelaide, Australia, Dec. 26-27-28.

State Finalists In Empire Play
COOPERSTOWN, Aug. 1 (AP)—Teams from Rochester and Yonkers will meet here Saturday in the State finals of the American Legion baseball tournament.

In semi-final play-offs yesterday, Yonkers routed Kingston 11-4 at Kingston. Rochester edged Ithaca 3-2 on the victor's field.

The Saturday game is scheduled for 2 p.m. at Doubleday Field.

Fertilizer Salts, Alkali From Water May Be Cause For Leaves Turning Brown

HOUSE VINES: How are your philodendrons faring these days? If the edges or tips of the leaves have turned brown, the trouble may be due to fertilizer salts, or alkali from the water used for the plants. Sometimes home owners are puzzled to find that their leaves get smaller and smaller, or tend to return to juvenile forms. This is often due to a lack of organic matter in the soil, or a separation of this material from the soil mixture, leaving the roots to fare in a hard, cement-like mixture. This soil is difficult to keep moist as the water merely runs down the inside of the pot, leaving the core dry. Or it may be that the plant is not watered enough, or not fed enough. Dense shade will also cause the leaves to grow smaller.

Yellowing and leaf drop indicate water around the roots. If your vines are in a planter, avoid overwatering. These planters have no drainage holes, so withhold all waterings until the soil dries out for at least 1/2 inch below the surface before watering.

Earwigs: This department has received many requests for information concerning the earwig. This is that fast-moving pest you see inside your flowers, under hedges and everywhere. It has a pair of pincers for a tail, and while they are normally nocturnal invaders, you often see them working in broad daylight. They'll go from the garden to the home, where it resembles cockroaches in habit. Control: For best results, dust or spray with chlordane in the evening. They hide under boards, trash piles, etc., so it's a good idea to keep these away. Our bandy hens have done a grand job cleaning up earwigs in our lawns and gardens. Free: Want to know more about Earwigs and other household pests? Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a copy of our bulletin "Controlling Household Insects." This guide tells how to lick spiders, termites, silver fish and other pests.

Strawberry Notes: Now's a good time to work your strawberries for the 1957 crop. Loosen the soil by frequent shallow cultivation. This encourages the runner plants to take root readily. Space runner plants about 9 inches apart to hasten development of full rows of plants. This proper spacing gives you more berries, bigger berries, less decay. About 4 plants per sq. ft. of space is just right. Feed your strawberries now for a heavy set of fruit buds next spring. Summer feeding is important for berry production next spring.

Enjoy their CRISP, FRESH FLAVOR with summer meals!

Blessings May Be In Disguise

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

THERE may be a blessing or two in disguise in the Egyptian decision to nationalize the Suez Canal, though most of the potentialities of the situation are anything but pleasant.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser's move has brought home to the United States the urgent necessity of forming a definite policy for the Middle East and, for that matter, for all those areas which the Russians like to call "colonial and dependent."

The Egyptian gamble also could stimulate an effort on the part of the British and the Americans to bury the undercover differences which now separate them in the Middle East and attempt to arrive at something like a common Western policy for all such areas.

Up to now, there does not appear to have been much of a definite American policy with regard to the Middle East, much less a unified Western approach to the problems involved — problems which eventually can touch the lives of all Americans.

Development's

The Suez developments underscored for the West the futility of trying to placate Nasser's government. When the Revolutionary Council came to power in Egypt behind the figurehead Mohamed Naguib, the West was willing and eager to help along what looked like a promising movement in the Middle East.

Somewhere about mid-1953 the complexion of the Egyptian regime changed. Nasser was more and more the boss, Naguib more and more the figurehead. It was then that Egypt's propaganda jumped exultantly into French affairs in North Africa, British affairs in East Africa, Western allied affairs in Iraq, Jordan and Saudi Arabia. Egypt contributed no little to the round of disturbances.

Western diplomats in the area were convinced Nasser would have called off this campaign for a price—arms from the West. The arms in the quantity he wanted were not forthcoming and he looked elsewhere.

Then Western diplomats and statesmen began trekking to Cairo. With each visitor Nasser's stock rose in the Arab world as a man who could successfully defy the great powers and make them come to him. There was little doubt that Egypt was playing the Communists against the West for Egypt's advantage.

Suddenly, however, the rug was pulled from under Nasser. Britain and the United States would not finance his dam. Even if the Russians wanted to do it instead, Nasser would be reluctant beneficiary of the Communists he dreaded. Nasser reacted with what looked like desperation and took over the Suez canal.

The future of the flow of oil and other goods through the canal is of enormous importance to western Europe and the United States. Temporizing policies will not suffice for such a situation.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your future. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 4 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 4, add 3. The result is your year number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Luckily they will be here a full week, "The King and I" at the Sherman and "Moby Dick" at the Grand, so that most of us can see them both.

Suez Canal, Current Trouble Spot, Losing Some Of Its Great Value Despite Rich History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE SUEZ Canal, the world's richest ditch, was built by a Frenchman and became the life-line of the British Empire by the lone-handed action of a British prime minister of Italian-Jewish ancestry.

Its strategic value as a lifeline, however, decreased considerably in the age of atomic bombs and rising Arab nationalism.

In World War II the big waterway, just over 100 miles in length, was closed several times for varying periods by enemy bombs and mines.

Reset by Egyptian nationalists, who waged a terrorist-style campaign, Britain agreed in 1954 to terminate her 1936 treaty of alliance with the Egyptians and to end her military occupation of the Suez Canal Zone. The last British troops pulled out on June 13, leaving maintenance of her bases there in the hands of civilian contractors. The agreement provided that the British might return in the event of an attack by an outside power of any member of the Arab League or Turkey.

Value

The value of a waterway linking the Mediterranean with the Red Sea was evident even to the ancients. Various writings indicate that a wandering canal existed more than 1,000 years before the Christian era. But drifting sand filled it in.

Pharaoh Necho tried to dig a new canal about 600 B.C., and 120,000 Egyptians perished in the undertaking. Apparently this was what Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser was referring to in his speech in Alexandria Thursday night when he said 120,000 Egyptians died in building the canal.

The French engineer, Ferdinand de Lesseps, builder of the modern canal, got his first concession to undertake the work in 1854 and organized a company to finance it. A later 99-year concession does not expire until 1968 when the canal was supposed to return to Egypt.

Britain opposed the canal, viewing it as a French intrusion into the Middle East. But in 1875, when Benjamin Disraeli, then British prime minister, heard that the governor of Egypt was being forced to sell his 177,000 shares in the canal company because of debts, he jumped at the chance.

Some of the governor's debts were incurred at a giant party he gave at the opening of the canal in 1869. Among other things, he commissioned Giuseppe Verdi to compose the opera "Aida" for the occasion.

Disraeli, whose grandfather was an Italian Jew, promptly borrowed the Rothschilds the four million pounds necessary to swing the deal. He did not tell Parliament but eventually the lawmakers sanctioned his audacious stroke, which paid off handsomely in later years.

The canal, which handles nearly three times as much traffic as the Panama Canal, cuts 6,700 miles off a trip from the Red Sea to New York. A medium-sized freighter can pay a toll of $5,800 and yet save 14 days and $28,000 a voyage from India to the East Coast of the United States.

Conference

At an international conference in Constantinople in 1888 a Suez canal convention provided that the waterway should "always be free and open, in time of war as in time of peace, to every vessel of commerce or of war, without distinction of flag." The convention was signed by Britain, France, Germany, Austria, Spain, Italy, Netherlands, Russia and Turkey—but not by Egypt.

For practical purposes, however, the canal was closed to Germany and her allies in both world wars because the navies of the Allied powers controlled the seas. And Israel now complains that Egypt has been blockading her shipping through the canal.

As chief defender of the canal under her alliance with Egypt, Britain turned the Suez Canal Zone into a beehive of military installations.

The British government now owns 353,504 of the company's 800,000 shares and is the biggest single owner. The canal is governed by a board of 32 directors—16 French, 9 British, 5 Egyptian, 1 American and 1 Dutch.

Nasser Pulls Sensational Maneuver

By J. M. ROBERTS

Associated Press News Analyst
Gamal Abdel Nasser, Egypt's dictator-president, has pulled a fast one which is even more sensational than Iran's oil expropriation attempt in 1951.

Now he is in much the same position as Iranian Premier Mohammed Mossaddegh got into then, and the result may be even more serious for Nasser and for Egypt.

Nasser can operate the Suez Canal, where Mossaddegh could not operate the Iranian oil wells. But the situation is far different. The world, almost by a flick of the wrist, was able to replace Iran's oil production at the time. The Suez Canal, of vast importance to all nations, cannot be so quickly replaced and so France and England, particularly, are under pressure to take drastic political action—perhaps even military action—immediately, or else submit to heavy charges against their shipping.

Nasser, with no economic background, has done two things.

To fortify himself as the leader of the Arab States in their conflict with Israel, he has given Russia a lien on a large part of Egypt's income in return for arms.

Promise

And he has promised the people to build a big dam at Aswan, on the Nile, to aid irrigation and provide power for industrial development.

He thought he could get outsiders to build the dam by playing off Russia against the Western powers, but nobody took the bait. Infuriated, Nasser seems to think he can just expropriate the Suez Canal and get $100,000,000 a year for work on the dam. But he'll either have to pay the Canal's owners or outlaw himself, and the canal's net income actually is less than $50,000,000. He's up a stump on that score.

In addition, the canal is rapidly becoming obsolete, and a new one through Palestine has already been discussed. Egypt could be frozen out of the shipping-toll business long before she can finish the dam.

France is already applying the clamps by freezing Egyptian deposits in her banks, and Britain has far larger ones in her control. Britain could virtually squeeze Egypt out of the so-called Silver Bloc, ruin her currency and wreck her economy.

Tests Signal Opens Regular Schedule For Each Month

THE AIR RAID SIGNAL heard at noon yesterday is a test signal which will be heard the first working day of each month, local police report.

Executive Director of Civil Defense Paul Crown said this is part of an all-over check of warning devices around the county.

Urging

The Civil Defense has urged all townships and boroughs to be sure all warning devices are in working order.

Requests for new equipment may be made with the government matching funds for signals and alarms.

Many are ordering and installing larger devices around the county. Crown said. This is an effort to reach as far as possible with the signals, though the distance at which they may be heard depends on wind and weather to quite an extent.

AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK, Aug. 1 (AP)—It was a world full of sounds and flurries and semantics last week.

From a dignified Kansas City man in a new station wagon. A patrolman intercepted him driving along a downtown street, crowing like a rooster. He was just trying to find his wife, he said.

Meeting

"I was supposed to meet her here. She knows my crow. I practice it around the house all the time."

Fight Traffic Battle
NEW DELHI, Aug. 1 (AP)—Bicyclists and the police of India's capital are fighting a traffic battle. The police aren't doing so well. Traffic cops made the bicyclists a special target in May and handed out 7,000 tickets. Only 985 appeared in court. Police never could find the 6,015 others. They gave phony addresses.
